While Alzheimer's steals memory and function, it doesn't have to take away dignity or diminish quality of life. It need not take an emotional and physical toll on that person's family, either. That's the goal of The Goerlich Center. Our support is rooted in a solid understanding of Alzheimer's and respect and compassion for the individual stricken with this relentless disease. Our patients' families tell us that they now have peace of mind. Knowing that their loved ones are treated with respect and dignity is of great comfort to them.

Beyond just caring for our patients, The Goerlich Center is committed to research into the causes of Alzheimer's. One of the most difficult things about Alzheimer's is getting accurate information about how the disease progresses. We learn more about this disease every day. We now know that a controlled environment, regular daily routine, appropriate activity and skilled, professional care play important roles in slowing the progress of the disease, managing symptoms and enhancing the quality of life for our residents.

Dealing with Alzheimer's can be a frightening, overwhelming experience. The Goerlich Center is here to help.
